

Coed Running Launched for AWS Offices

Selection of Associated Women Students officers for next year will begin this week as coeds go to the polls Thursday and Friday to pick candidates.

Posters and banners will urge women to cast their ballots. A general "get out the vote" drive, staged by all of the candidates will replace individual campaigning. "It is a little early to get in the spirit of elections and voting, so we are doing everything possible to get all the girls aware and interested so that they will vote," says Mary Ann Boyack, Seattle, AWS president.

Early Balloting

AWS elections must be held before the student-body elections in order that the president-elect may accompany Miss Boyack to a regional AWS meeting at Tucson April 8.

Voting booths will open Thursday at 8 a.m. in the Science, Joseph Smith, and Education buildings. Women may vote from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday by presenting their activity cards. Election results will be announced and the vote drive will continue next week with final balloting on April 1 and 2.

Doris Bacon, Washington, D.C.; Shirley Burns, Ogden; Kay Cress, Concord, Cal.; Pat Nowell, Mondene, N.J.; and Joanne Smith, Portland, are candidates for AWS president.

Editors Assume Duties; Staff Meeting Slated

New University editor-in-chief and campus editor assumed their positions Monday, according to the publications committee. Jerry Cahill, junior from Payson, became editor-in-chief for the remainder of the year. He is the former assistant Tuesday editor.

Dick Mendosa, Banning, Calif., former college editor, has been appointed campus editor. His responsibilities will be those of former University managing editor, Dick Oveson, who is resigning.

Regular staff meeting will be held at 4:30 p.m. today in the University office, room 144 Student Service Center.

Fun Fest Planned In Fieldhouse For Prom Goers

Tex Beneke's orchestra, empyrene live settings, formal atmosphere, Shelly Hyde's combo, and vaudeville service will be part of the Junior Prom scheduled April 2 and 3 in the George Albert Smith Fieldhouse.

Tex Beneke and his orchestra will furnish music from a band stand which will be built in the form of three large native drums.

The dance setting is an empyrene live with part of the dancing taking place on an island and part on a luxury liner. This liner will be anchored to the island. Pools of floating flowers and palm trees will be prevalent on the island, and modern lounges will be provided on board the ship.

As each couple approaches the ship, they will be given a travogue with picturesque island scenes.

Men at the dance will wear either tuxedos, dinner jackets, dark suits, or ROTC uniforms. Women are asked to wear simple in keeping with the Church standards. Corsages are not in order. If they are worn, they will have to be checked at the door.

Thursday is the deadline for ordering tuxedos at either Sherris or Clark's, official tux rental agencies.

Belle of the Year To Be Named After Contests

Vying for the crown of "Belle of the Year" are 34 girls who are competing in five contests which started last night and will continue through Friday.

The "Belle" who receives this crown will be a representative of the ideal coed. She will have competed for a total of 100 possible points to be earned in the contests.

The first contest was the judging of beauty, and was held in the Smith banquet hall last night. The second contest, which was the cake baking competition at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the west lounge of the Social Hall, Wednesday's mat dances will be the setting for demonstrations of the girls' dancing ability.

The remaining two contests will be held on Thursday, popularity being determined at the assembly by student ballot, and talent being displayed at the afternoon.

The "Belle" will reign over the ball, "Colonial Cotillion" which climaxes the week, Friday night. Student support is urged for all contests.

The "Belle of the Year" week was first introduced to the BYU campus the spring of 1953 by the Intercollegiate Knights and the Y Calcarees. Its purposes are the revival of the old Y Ball tradition and the election of a queen who, not only represented beauty, but also other qualities which make an outstanding coed. Her popularity, poise on the dance floor, and the ability to cook. The week was formerly used as a means of raising funds for the erection of the Y Ball shrine.

Ralph Lundgreen, a graduate assistant in the speech department, is director of the play, which is based on the life of Saint Cuthman. Mr. Lundgreen described the play as "a simple story of a boy's religious faith, growing out of adversity."

Cuthman will be played by Tom Stone, and the role of his mother will be alternately played by Lorna Erickson and Doris Brown. Dick Gish will serve as narrator. Others in the cast are Jean Warner, Edene Jensen, Sharon Paul, Karen Sowers, Rae Ann Boyer, Ruth Ables, Dick Brannock, Don Milner, Roland Wheelwright, William Pratt, Jim Ebbelston, Stanford Sorenson, Ross Arrington, and Gary Lundberg.

AN EARLY START

For most students, the interlude between the end of winter quarter finals and the start of spring quarter was too brief to have produced any sense of real relief from studies such as comes during Christmas vacation. Many late papers and assignments have yet to be completed and at the same time new assignments are being made.

So students are burdened with continuing tasks in the face of approaching spring and all that Spring connotes for budding scholars. If we are to enjoy our spring fever with minimum worries, we had better study diligently the first few weeks, while we're still baffled by the weatherman as to whether spring is really here or if winter will linger yet awhile.

It has been said elsewhere that the success of our studies depends on our activities and attitudes during the first three weeks of the quarter. Of course, with finals just completed many could argue that point; but, nonetheless, it would be prudent for all to continue the studious habits acquired in the last frantic week before finals.

We would all benefit from "keeping-up" in our classes, or even getting a little ahead, and being so firm in our study habits that the spring bug's effect would be lessened. Slothful study habits are perilous regardless of the season, and doubly easy to acquire in spring when our fancy is so naturally attracted to other interests.

An early awareness of our springtime study problems, an early determination to master them, and an early start to capitalize on our determination will assure us that as finals approach again, it won't be too late to remedy the ills.

New Procedures For Purchasing Of Books Outlined

A new procedure to be used in the textbook department of the bookstore has been released in a joint announcement made by the Honor Council and bookstore management. The procedure will be in effect commencing this quarter.

Henceforth students may place their books on convenient shelves at the entrance of the downstairs textbook department, or may use carrying-bags, with drawing straps which will be provided them to use during their buying sojourn. After students complete purchases they are to leave the bags at the exit for incoming students. Books being purchased will not be placed inside the drawing-bags.

This is a change from previous procedures in which bookstore employees met entering students and stapled their books in a paper bag. It is planned that a new policy will facilitate movement of long lines and add to students' convenience.

In announcing the plan, Robert P. Thorn, chairman of the Honor Council indicated that the change had been made after consultation with student coordinator Dr. Isakson and bookstore manager Nell McJilton.

Overcoming objections of some students that such methods are contradictory to the honor system, Chairman Thorn stated that the bookstore management maintains the honor system, and appreciates the fact that it has been greatly responsible for the success of the self-service system used in the supply department.

However, he stated, certain controls must be exercised in the bookstore, not as question marks upon the honor of the student body, but as means of protection from the suspicion of those few who have demonstrated they do not share the general respect for honest conduct.

Student Counselor Takes Study Leave

Dr. Antone K. Romney, director of Brigham Young University counseling services, will take a leave of absence spring and summer quarters to do research in the counseling field.

His study functions, organization, methods and philosophy of counseling services in American Universities. Dr. Romney said that although BYU counseling service is one of the best in the country, he hopes to find some methods of counseling that can be applied to BYU counseling, to make it even better.

To Do Research

He will do research based on interviews, questionnaires and written reports from the personnel of the best counseling services in eastern, southern and midwestern universities.

His studies will take him to the University of Minnesota, University of Chicago, Northwestern University, Michigan State College, University of Michigan, Boston University, Columbia University, and other leading colleges and universities.

Study in Liberal Arts

Dr. Romney's research will be broad, covering liberal arts colleges and universities. He will leave Monday, March 22, for Kansas City, Mo. for the first stop of his studies. He will visit the University of Missouri at Columbia first. Another stop in his research will be the American Personnel and Guidance Convention at Buffalo, N.Y., April 11-15. While there he will meet leading personnel and guidance workers in American universities and state directors of guidance services.

RING BELL—Committee members cleaning the Y Bell in preparation for Y Belle Week activities are Preston Madsen, chairman; Lynn Stahl, Jeannette Boyack, Gary Hanning, Glynn Schmitt, Jean Sabin, and Alan Thomander. Dance Friday ends week.

Expanded AFROTC Program Possibility Under New Budget

A study of the fiscal year 1955 budget for the operation of the AFROTC program in the Department of Defense submitted to Congress by President Dwight D. Eisenhower indicates a possible expansion of the AFROTC program and a relaxing of the requirement that most of those expecting to receive a commission must apply for flying training.

It appears that it will be necessary to lift some of the restrictions imposed on the AFROTC program by last year's budget if the build-up of the Air Force programmed in President Eisenhower's new budget is to be accomplished.

Increased Strength

Under the proposed budget, the strength of the Air Force will be increased by approximately 20,000 officers during the next 18 months. This means that many more than 20,000 officers will have to be taken into the Air Force because during the same period large numbers will be completing their tour of duty and returning to civilian life.

It is planned under the new budget that the Air Force expand from its present 115 wings to 137 wings and from its present 123,000 officers to 143,000 officers by June of 1955. Since the AFROTC program provides approximately 80 per cent of the new officers in the Air Force, it appears that the Air Force will be commissioning a larger number of AFROTC graduates if the budget is passed than is presently programmed.

More Non-Flying Officers

The normal ratio of flying to non-flying officers in the Air Force is about 70 per cent flying to about 30 per cent administrative and technical officers, so it also appears that the Air Force will commission a larger percentage of non-flying officers than presently programmed under the budget of last year.

Even though the Air Force will apparently commission a larger percentage of non-flying officers in the future, Colonel Jesse E.

Stay, Professor of Air Science and Tactics, stressed the fact that under ideal conditions, the major portion of AFROTC graduates would still have to intend to go into flight training if the Air Force is to maintain the desired ratio of 70 per cent flying officers to 30 per cent non-flying officers.

At the present time, there is no limit on the number of cadets the AFROTC program can enroll in the advanced course who intend to go into flight training and who are physically qualified to do so.

Program Limitations

However, with the exception of a few cadets majoring in chemistry, physics, engineering or mathematics, the number who can be enrolled in the advanced course of the AFROTC program who do not intend to go into flight training is extremely limited. Even those few have been told that under the present program, they will probably not be granted a commission until after they have served two years on active duty as enlisted men.

It is hoped that under the President's new budget most of those non-flying, non-technical cadets will be commissioned upon graduation and that authority will be granted for a larger number to be enrolled in the advanced course in this category in the future.

Ball Team Opens Season At Nellis

Spring will be officially issued in when the Brigham Young Cougars take to the baseball diamond on March 24 against the Nellis Air Force Base nine at Las Vegas, Nev.

This will be the first game of a four-day trip which will see the Cougars playing five games with four different western hosts.

After playing Las Vegas, the squad will travel to California to meet Tempest Island Air Force Base, March 25, Loyola University on the 26th, and finishing up with a twin bill at George Pepperdine College on the 27th.

15 Make Trip

Coach Dave Crowton announced that 15 men would make the western trip, but that these squad members are not necessarily the final team, as five others will be picked from basketballers who have turned out late.

Along the traveling roster are six pitchers, who will be counted on heavily to pull the Cougars through the five-game schedule. Lettermen returning Ray Lish, Morris Jackson, and Gary Johnson, will team up with rookie hopefuls Lamar Williams, Rich Tojson, and either Lynn Jones or Sam Gray.

Will Handle Choors

Behind the plate will be two sharp receivers, Lynn Foster and Willard Hirschel, while Stan Gleave will be holding down the first sack. At the hot corner is Mick Eggerston, and adding strength down the middle are Don Regan at second, and Phil Oyler at shortstop.

Only three outfielders will go along with the team, and at present time, there were five in the running for the starting berths. Flooding the list are Merrill Hardy and Ralph Morgan, while Dave Lewis, Walter Kelly, and Mac Madsen will vie for the remaining post.

Honor Cats

The Cougars leave Wednesday morning, early and will make the entire trip by car. A side-light of the trip will be the Golden Gate Golden banquet sponsored by the Wilmington Ward of California in honor of the traveling Cougars, on Friday.

Although the squad has been hampered by a lack of practice, due to bad weather and the M-

Men tournament, the Cats will be fielding one of the best nines in the past three years. And, according to Coach Crowton, the team is eager to "get the show on the road."
